are competent, a lovely table setting, food that is perfectly prepared, cordial and hospitable host and a charming hostess” (and a good seating chart).

Thankfully, there is another source we can turn to on how to throw a perfect party. That source is the Bible. And the “etiquette expert” is Jesus himself. In today’s Gospel, Jesus gives guidance on party protocol while attending a formal dinner. When God is throwing a party, all the “right” people will be there -- that is everyone who responds to (God’s) invitation. But seated next to the host (Jesus) in the places of honor are not the dignitaries, the celebrities, the distinguished people of position and prominence, but rather the poor, the hurting, the outcast -- people who have distinguished themselves only by their need.

Etiquette for guests and hosts.

Luke 14 focuses on etiquette for guests and hosts at dinner parties. I thought I’d see what the original “Miss Manners,” Emily Post, had to say on the subject. So I consulted my eighteenth edition of Emily Post’s Etiquette. “People today tend to regard at-home formal dining as an opportunity to dress up, set a beautiful table, use their very best manners, and enjoy lively conversation over an excellent meal. True formal dining calls for meals served by staff.” [325]. Emily Post was very specific about planning formal dinners. Seating charts were included showing which seats the guests of honor should get. Who’s seated next to whom is also important. “Seating is, as far as possible, man-woman. Guests of honor sit to the right of the hostess and host; otherwise, hosts determine the seating order following the table of precedence if government officials or members of the military or diplomatic service are guests” [326]. Emily Post sums it all up: “The requisites for a perfect formal dinner are: guests who are congenial, servants who
